CRUX

BY ULRIKE TONY VAHL

From the award-winning producer of The Zone of Interest, A Real Pain, Cold War, and Ida, comes a gripping drama about the fading line between right and wrong in the final breath of war.

As World War II comes to a close, a quiet village in Germany faces its darkest hour. While the men are away on the frontline, Greta, Anni, and the remaining villagers try to preserve a semblance of life. But the discovery of unknown corpses along the river marks the unraveling of their world. As more corpses appear, fear gives way to hysteria, culminating in a chilling command: “The Russians are not to find a single living German.” With death looming and morality collapsing, the villagers face an impossible question: what does survival mean when humanity itself is lost?

Bold and irreverent JIM QUEEN is a wild ride through identity, image, and the absurd lengths we'll go to stay seen — and stay queer.

In the heart of Paris's gay scene, Jim reigns supreme: the ultimate Gym Queen, influencer, and object of universal thirst. But when a bizarre virus called Heterosis starts turning gay men straight, his reign ends overnight. Unfollowed, abandoned, and stripped of status, Jim is left with just one unlikely ally: Lucien, a devoted scrawny twink with more loyalty than clout. Together, they plunge into the queer chaos of the Marais, chasing a rogue doctor rumored to have a cure.

An epic and inspiring underwater family adventure about bravery, belonging, and the bonds that heal.

Vincent is no ordinary teenage humpback whale, he’s the only son of the legendary Whale Singer, whose magical song once protected the oceans. Now orphaned and adrift, Vincent has buried his past and silenced his voice...until a long-dormant threat awakens. When the ancient Leviathan escapes from its icy prison, releasing waves of toxic ink and chaos through the seas, Vincent is forced into action. Joined by a crew of unlikely misfits, he must journey through the deep, confront his fears, and uncover the magic within his own voice to finally fulfill his true calling as the ocean’s protector.

A gripping true story of courage under fire, and the cost of standing for what’s right.

April 9th, 1940—Norway is under siege. As German warships close in on Oslo, Colonel Birger Eriksen, commander of the undermanned Oscarsborg Fortress, makes a bold decision that changes the course of history. With no reinforcements, no clear order, and time running out, he makes a fateful call, launching the first shots against the German invasion and sinking the heavy cruiser Blücher. While his actions stall the enemy, delaying a full-scale invasion, they trigger a brutal response. Trapped for ten hours under relentless bombardment, Eriksen must protect not only his country, but the lives of those closest to him.

A woman with long hair, wearing a light-colored long-sleeved shirt and dark shorts, is walking away from the viewer down a wide, dusty road. She is carrying a rifle over her shoulder. In the distance, on the right side of the road, there is a small, single-story building that is on fire. Thick, dark smoke is rising from the building into the sky. The entire scene is bathed in a strong orange and red light, suggesting a sunset or a fire. The road has deep tire tracks in the dust.

Sometimes the hardest place to return is home.

After years of isolation in the Canadian wilderness, wrangling cattle and surviving a controlling marriage, Charlotte finally breaks free. Her escape takes her back to Manhattan, to the opulent yet emotionally fraught world she left behind. There, she finds refuge in her childhood home on Park Avenue, and a tense reunion with her estranged mother, Kit, sets the tone for six weeks of clashing egos, uncovered secrets, and unexpected tenderness. As Charlotte navigates the ghosts of her past and rekindles a connection with Anders, the building’s doorman and her first flame, she begins to unravel the complex web of love, grief, and identity that binds her to the city, and to her mother.
